WELCOME HOME TO MARAC!

All of us have been through challenges in the past two years, but we are at last ready to safely welcome everyone back to in-person MARAC meetings in historic Gettysburg, Pennsylvania for the Fall 2021 conference!

Gettysburg entered American lore as the turning point of the American Civil War when the Union forces at last began to repulse the tides of secession and enslavement. The Pennsylvania Monument dominates the battlefield, with smaller monuments reeling in noble and ignoble people. Individual stones mark the borders of company lines, welding in the stories of the everyday individuals with larger narratives of the nation.

The Civil War had an impact in some way upon every single person living in the United States at the time. Its legacy as a triumph for the Union at the cost of 700,000 lives and an incomplete and unfinished Reconstruction still impacts us today. One hundred sixty years out from Fort Sumter, we can see the long shadow. Just like the Civil War, we have all been affected by the COVID-19 pandemic in some way or another. What sort of long shadow will these past two years cast on history? Will COVID-19 politics still be debated 160 years from now, or will this story be resurrected only at the next pandemic? Will the protests for justice lead to real and lasting change in our nation or be another mark of missed opportunity for equality?

The conference will offer numerous sessions and discussions around these themes, as well as educational opportunities focused on other ways memory is created. Our plenary session will feature Betsy Keene, Curator of the National Parks of Western Pennsylvania, discussing sites of memory “Beyond Thoughts and Prayers” at the Flight 93 Memorial as we pass the 20th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks. The luncheon speaker will feature Scott Hancock, Associate Professor of History and Africana Studies at Gettysburg College as he discusses his work to reinterpret Confederate monuments at the Gettysburg Battlefield.

We will gather for our Friday-night reception at the Battlefield Visitor Center for appetizers and drinks and the opportunity to explore their exhibits, their new film A New Birth of Freedom, and the cyclorama painting, which brings the events of July 1863 to life in a 360-degree presentation.

Of course, the conference will also be offering a plethora of tours for those intent on exploring South Central Pennsylvania and Western Maryland. Before or after your workshop on Thursday (or on your trip into town before the conference), take the time to visit the Seton Shrine and Daughters of Charity Archives, where first American-born saint, Saint Elizabeth Ann Seton, began her mission of service, charity, and education. In mid-morning or mid-afternoon, see the Evergreen Cemetery, the site of the Gettysburg Address and the resting place of many of Gettysburg’s most prominent citizens; or the Shriver House and Museum, preserving the memory of the civilian experience of the Battle of Gettysburg. As we approach the end of the afternoon, tour options include the Adams County Winery or a showcase of the treasures of Gettysburg College Special Collections. Passes for the Seminary Ridge Museum will be valid for any time over the conference weekend and showcase the battlefield from the cupola of the seminary. End your conference on Saturday with a special guided tour of the battlefield from horseback by the trained riders at Hickory Hollow Horse Farm.

Alongside all of this, take the time to explore the town of Gettysburg, which features a number of trails and hiking opportunities, the Dwight D. Eisenhower Farm, the Lincoln Train Museum, Land of Little Horses miniature horse farm, and numerous options for paranormal and ghost tours.

All of us look forward to our time to be together at the Wyndham Gettysburg. Hotel staff are following all guidelines for safety and are working hard to give us the best experience possible. Welcome to MARAC Gettysburg!

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8

PLENARY—BEYOND THOUGHTS AND PRAYERS, CARING FOR THE FLIGHT 93 TRIBUTE COLLECTION
9–10 A.M.

Betsy Keene, National Park Service

On September 11, 2001, the passengers and crew of United Airlines Flight 93 prevented four terrorists and their hijacked plane from reaching its intended target in Washington, D.C. In response, people poured expressions of love and gratitude onto the field where the forty heroes crashed the plane. A month after the attacks, the first tributes were collected from impromptu memorials surrounding the crash site. These 68 items were the first of what has grown to a collection of over 40,000 objects documenting the wellspring of emotions prompted by the attacks of September 11. Managing such a unique collection is both a privilege and a challenge for Betsy Keene, Curator of the National Parks of Western Pennsylvania. Betsy will present not only the history of the tribute collection at the Flight 93 National Memorial in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, but also the special concerns and issues associated with it.

Keene, a native of Durham, North Carolina, attended Allegheny College in Meadville, Pennsylvania as an undergraduate and before completing her MA in History with a Museum Studies Certificate at the University of Delaware. She has been a National Parks employee since October 2016 and has worked at four parks—the Lyndon B. Johnson National Historic Park, Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Historic Park, Mount Rainier National Park, and Colonial National Historic Park—before coming to the Western Pennsylvania parks in 2020.

STUDENT AND PROFESSIONAL POSTER SESSION
10–10:45 A.M.

The poster session will highlight current, innovative archival research and projects from both students and professionals. Poster presenters will be available during this session to discuss their posters and answer your questions.

It’s not too late to participate! Poster proposals will be accepted until September 1, 2021. Submit your proposal here: http://bit.ly/marac_fall2021_poster. A detailed list of posters will be included in the program supplement that will be distributed at the meeting and via the meeting website and scheduling app.

LUNCHEON—REMEMBERING GETTYSBURG’S BATTLEFIELD THROUGH BLACK AND WHITE STORIES
12–1:30 P.M.

Scott Hancock, Gettysburg College

Scott Hancock is an associate professor of history and Africana Studies at Gettysburg College. After spending 14 years working with teenagers in crisis, he switched careers and received a Ph.D. in Early American History from the University of New Hampshire in 1999. Some of his past research explored how antebellum African Americans remembered their past; that, combined with living a short walk from some of the Confederate state monuments at Gettysburg National Military Park, has prompted him to think about what the million or so visitors to the battlefield do and do not remember about this landscape’s past. His presentation walks through how research at GNMP’s archive and other sources have helped him see the battlefield in a fundamentally different way and suggests ways that perspective may be communicated to other visitors in the future.

RECEPTION
6–8 P.M.

The reception will be held at the Gettysburg National Military Park Visitors Center and Museum. The Center is part of the National Park and run by the Gettysburg Foundation. The Center will be open for attendees to tour the Gettysburg Museum of the American Civil War exhibit, view the film A New Birth of Freedom, narrated by award-winning actor Morgan Freeman, and experience the Cyclorama painting depicting Pickett’s Charge. Refreshments will be served at the reception. There is ample parking at the Visitors Center and a limited bus service to the reception will also be available.

S1. MEMORY MAKING THROUGH ARRANGING AND DESCRIBING PERSONAL PAPERS

CHAIR: Elizabeth Scott, East Stroudsburg University
PRESENTERS: Alexandra deGraffenreid, Pennsylvania State University
           Jenna Fleming, Rockefeller Archive Center

Personal papers communicate a great deal of information about the lives, thoughts, and actions of their creators and shape collective memory. This session will explore archivists’ power in arranging and describing these collections as well as the creators’ roles in curating their own memorialization. The session will discuss the considerations archivists must take into account in creating accurate yet respectful and appropriate archival description. Implicit challenges including legacy archival practices, unpleasant realities, missing or misrepresented histories, ethical concerns, and the struggle to provide objective context will be addressed. In recognizing challenges and limitations, the panelists hope to foster conversation about creating more accessible, conscious, and transparent documentation.

Digital preservation needs to be addressed programmatically, but it can be hard to know where to start. Larissa will show how the Leon S. McGoogan Health Sciences Library used assessment tools to define their current digital preservation environment and develop a proposed program that addresses organizational and technical needs while gaining buy-in from senior leadership. Maggie will discuss strategies for creating a digital preservation policy as a key component for the development of digitization, digital collecting, digital preservation procedures and strategic planning goals. Maggie will provide tips on who to involve in planning conversations, general best practices, and sample documents.

S3. USING COMMUNITY COLLECTING PROJECTS AND PARTNERSHIPS TO INCREASE THE DIVERSITY OF ARCHIVAL HOLDINGS

CHAIR: Christy Fic, Shippensburg University
PRESENTERS: Steven Burg, Shippensburg University
            Ethan Smith, Shippensburg University

            Erin Rothenbuehler, Ohio County Public Library

In this session, archivists and historians will describe how they partnered to increase the diversity and accessibility of archival holdings through community collecting projects. Colleagues from Shippensburg University will discuss the SU LGBTQ+ History Project, which seeks to expand the Archives’ holdings related to LGBTQ+ life and activism on campus through the development of a research guide, oral history interviews, and donations of materials related to LGBTQ activism and curriculum. Colleagues from the OCPL in Wheeling, WV will discuss Archiving Wheeling, an online community designed to showcase the local and regional history collections of the OCPL and its heritage partners. Three Archiving Wheeling initiatives have been created to unearth and preserve neglected stories from Wheeling’s Jim Crow Era.

S4. BLACK HISTORIES OF GETTYSBURG

CHAIR/PRESENTER: Andrew Dalton, Adams County Historical Society
PRESENTERS: Jane Nutter, Gettysburg Black History Museum
           Jill Ogline Titus, Gettysburg College
           Lance R. Eisenhower, Lehigh University, Ph.D. Candidate

This research session will focus on the Black history of Gettysburg and the battlefield as a site of memory in African American culture. Andrew Dalton and Jane Nutter will discuss the development of Gettysburg’s Black community over two centuries and how their organizations are working together to present a more complete story. Jill Ogline Titus will explore the diverse ways in which African Americans and their white allies used the 100th anniversary commemoration of Gettysburg during the Cold War to highlight the effects of racism on a nation that purported to be the world’s defender of democracy. Lance Eisenhower will present about a brief period beginning in the 1880s when Black communities organized day trips to Gettysburg and the reasons Gettysburg ultimately declined as a site of Black leisure and pilgrimage.
S5. ARCHIVING OUTSIDE THE LINES: PARTNERING WITH LOCAL COMMUNITIES IN NON-TRADITIONAL USAGE OF AUDIOVISUAL MATERIALS

CHAIR: Robin Pike, University of Maryland
PRESENTERS: Drew Barker, University of Maryland
Stephen Henry, University of Maryland
Siobhan Hagan, Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive

This panel will discuss two grant-funded projects which partnered with local community organizations to digitize and provide unique access to audiovisual materials. The University of Maryland Libraries will describe the complex web of community relationships that laid the groundwork for a project to digitize video and other material from its Dance Exchange Collection. The Mid-Atlantic Regional Moving Image Archive (MARMIA) will present a collaboration with Baltimore Heritage, where highly at-risk videotapes were made digitized and accessible by adding video clips to geocoded stories, tying the vintage footage directly to its location in Baltimore on Baltimore Heritage’s interactive webpage and mobile app.

S7. ARCHIVES OFF-SITE: DIGITAL WORKFLOWS AND APPROACHES DURING A PANDEMIC

CHAIR/PRESENTER: Kristin Conlin, University of Baltimore
PRESENTERS: Laura Bell, University of Baltimore
Angela Koukoui, University of Baltimore
Christine Lutz, Rutgers University
Brianna Gormly, Franklin & Marshall College
Louise LoBello, Franklin & Marshall College

Panelists from three institutions, one small, one medium, and one large, will share their adaptive and iterative approaches to digital work during the pandemic. Panelists will discuss the successes and challenges of coordinating archives projects in response to navigating an online-only environment and physical building access limitations. Projects include finding aid migration to ArchivesSpace while working from home; ‘hot-wiring’ SpringShare’s LibAnswers to manage research and ‘scan-on-demand’ requests with limited building access; and teaching virtually amidst new demands and the need to support synchronous and asynchronous instruction. The session will highlight the digital workflows and solutions each institution developed. Panelists will also discuss how these solutions will impact archives functions moving forward.

S6. REUNITING COLLECTIONS DIGITALLY: PROMOTING EXPLORATION OF CONTEXT AND RELATIONSHIPS

CHAIR: Colleen McFarland Rademaker, The Corning Museum of Glass
PRESENTERS: Jeffrey Edelstein, JDC Archives
Shannon Yule Morelli, National Gallery of Art

Digitization has created opportunities for the virtual reunification of dispersed material, opening possibilities to better understand the context of their creation or collection and the relationships among them. Jeff Edelstein will present the process by which the JDC Archives has been able to incorporate several fugitive collections, confiscated by Communist governments and inaccessible throughout the Cold War era, into its collections database and the flexible approach required to do so. Shannon Yule Morelli of the National Gallery of Art will introduce the Kress Collection Digital Archive which reunites nearly 3,500 works of European art now held by institutions throughout the United States and illustrate the development of the collection through thousands of related documents and images.

S8. BORN-DIGITAL PRESERVATION IN MUSIC AND THE DIGITAL HUMANITIES

CHAIR: Matthew Testa, Johns Hopkins University
PRESENTERS: Stephanie Akau, Library of Congress
Janet McKinney, Library of Congress
Rachel McNeillis, Library of Congress
R.C. Miessler, Gettysburg College

This session will address how the variety of proprietary and open-source music notation software used by musicians causes unique challenges in preserving digital music scores. It will expand on the Library of Congress’ recommended digital formats for notated music and explore how the results of a survey administered to university music educators informs outreach efforts. This session will also discuss workflows related to the archiving of digital projects created and abandoned by Gettysburg College students, the decisions made to ensure access to the projects and prevent rapid decay, and the implications of having a selective approach towards long-term preservation and the digital projects’ place in institutional memory.
$9. DIVERSITY AND INCLUSION DISCUSSION: THEMES AND TAKEAWAYS

MODERATORS: Ali Zawolski, William & Mary
Marci Bayer, National Archives and Records Administration

PRESENTERS:
Britta K. Granrud, Military Women’s Memorial
Amy B. Poe, Military Women’s Memorial
Allan A. Martell, Louisiana State University
Kathelene McCarty Smith, UNC Greensboro

Stories of wartime service are often channeled through historic, patriotic, or political lenses. Oftentimes, veterans worry that their lived experience will be forgotten or lost. Looking beyond official government record keeping, the panelists will highlight diverse approaches to recording military and homefront service. These collecting strategies are grounded in obtaining firsthand accounts that can prove central to creating a more authentic narrative of what it means to serve. Firsthand accounts simultaneously affirm the voice, value, and standing of the storyteller. The panelists will examine accounts of citizen archivists documenting WWI homefront service, women veterans fighting to create their own memorial and repository, and veterans determining what to collect and how to craft their own narrative.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 8 | 4:15–5:30 P.M.

$11. SOCIAL MEDIA ARCHIVING ON A SHOESTRING MINI-WORKSHOP

PRESENTERS: Sarah Ponichtera, Seton Hall University
Sheridan Sayles, Seton Hall University
Brianna LoSardo, Archdiocese of Newark

An increasing amount of community life takes place on social media platforms, particularly during this COVID-19 era. These platforms can be daunting to preserve, as they evolve so quickly and often present technical hurdles to capture. However, you do not need to be an IT expert to capture social media feeds for your institution! In this workshop, participants will learn how to capitalize on free tools for social media archiving, low-cost preservation and storage options, and workflows for planning remote internship projects centered on archiving social media.
S12. REUNITING COLLECTIONS PHYSICALLY: "REUNITED AND IT FEELS SO GOOD?"

CHAIR/PRESENTER:
Margaret Hewitt, Butler Area Public Library

PRESENTERS:
Mark Coulbourne, University of Maryland College Park
Susan Graham, University of Maryland Baltimore County
Jonathan Kirkwood, Sloan Museum

In an ideal world, collections would remain intact and preserved for current and future generations to access and learn from. When collections are broken apart, sold, or transferred between institutions and private individuals, archivists can be faced with the challenging task of physically reuniting them and thus ensuring their preservation and accessibility. Representing academic institutions, a private museum, and a public library, the panelists in this session will share their experiences in physically reuniting collections that were broken apart and dispersed for a variety of reasons.

S13. CONFLICT OF INTERESTS: MEETING THE NEEDS AND EXPECTATIONS OF DIVERSE USERS AND STAKEHOLDERS

CHAIR/PRESENTER:
Jennifer Henderson, Hershey Community Archives

PRESENTERS:
Tesa Burns, Hershey Community Archives
Susan Alger, Milton Hershey School

Meeting the needs and expectations of a wide array of users and stakeholders is a primary challenge we face as archivists. Panelists from Hershey Community Archives and Milton Hershey School Department of School History will discuss how they approach serving a wide-ranging group, all at once, and with limited staff. As both a corporate and community archives, HCA must balance the sometimes-conflicting missions of service to the Hershey Corporate Entities and educating the public, all while cultivating relationships with other community organizations. MHS School History endeavors to serve teachers, administrators, students, alumni, and more. Together, the two institutions collaborate to serve the Hershey community at large. Panelists will explore these challenges, possible solutions, and ongoing efforts to meet diverse user and stakeholder needs.

S14. MYTHS AND MONUMENTS: THE ROLE OF ARCHIVES IN POLICY INFLUENCE AND CHANGE

PRESENTERS: Nicholas C. Welsh, Fairfax County Archives and Records
Rex R. Stone, Fairfax County Archives and Records
Catherine Hardman, Historic Vienna, Inc.
Georgia Brown, Fairfax Historic Courthouse

Spurred by societal crises and trends, archivists and historians conduct research at the direction of governmental officials to better inform policy decisions. During the summer of 2020, various organizations in Fairfax County, Virginia were tasked with performing research relating to Confederate monuments, place names, and historical locations. The research, conducted by members of the archival profession, was ultimately used to inform meetings of the county’s Board of Supervisors, town halls, and public forums. This session will detail how archival research can be used to better inform officials and decision makers, the process behind that research, and how government archives are a tool for legislative action.

S15. CONNECTING COMMUNITIES AND BUILDING COLLECTIONS: ARCHIVING COMMUNITY RESILIENCE DURING A PANDEMIC

CHAIR: Siobhan Hagan, DC Public Library
PRESENTERS: Lisa Warwick, DC Public Library
Danielle Glynn, Roswell Park Comprehensive Cancer Center
Rachel Makarowski, Miami University
John Zarrillo, Georgetown University
Janet Bunde, New York University

The COVID-19 pandemic inspired archives across the United States to pivot their focus to collecting first-hand accounts and documenting exactly how things changed and what people were experiencing. This panel will share how five organizations approached responsive collecting projects in their communities during the pandemic. Topics will include oral histories, copyright, privacy and ethical concerns, social media and web archiving, bioethical issues and studies, crowd-sourced and participatory archiving, embargoed materials, and more. Lessons learned and practical advice for overcoming challenges that stem from these types of projects will be presented.

S16. REMEMBER THE LADIES: SHOWCASING THE HIDDEN HISTORIES OF WOMEN IN SCIENCE ONLINE

PRESENTERS: Hillary Kativa, Brandeis University
Rebecca Ortenberg, University of Pennsylvania

Women scientists appear everywhere in the historical record, though their contributions, roles, and even names often remain obscured. With so many women “hiding in plain sight,” how can archivists and public historians help elevate these stories and change the popular face of the history of science? In this discussion, archivist Hillary Kativa and social media editor Rebecca Ortenberg will share projects they undertook in their previous positions at the Science History Institute to feature the women scientists who appear in the Institute’s collections. From curation and digitization to crowdsourcing and digital storytelling, Rebecca and Hillary will interview each other about their roles and share what they learned about the Institute’s audiences, collections, and telling women’s stories on the internet.
S17. ARCHIVAL INTERVENTIONS IN BORN-DIGITAL RECORDS: SITES OF RECENT MEMORY

CHAIR: Jennifer Wachtel, University of Maryland
PRESENTERS: Matthew Testa, Johns Hopkins University
Barbara Benedett, Curtis Institute of Music
Joshua Westgard, University of Maryland

This session explores how archivists are capturing history in real time through born-digital videos and emails. The Peabody Institute of the Johns Hopkins University and the Curtis Institute of Music are managing rapidly growing collections of videos of campus events by ensuring their preservation while also making them available online shortly after the event. Similarly, the University of Maryland is archiving the White House Correspondents’ Association’s electronic pool reports (whpool.lib.umd.edu). Presenters will describe the challenges of collecting, processing, and making accessible born-digital records in near-real time while balancing competing concerns of access and privacy.

S18. BOOKS AS ARTIFACTS: “SITES OF MEMORY”

CHAIR: Michael Knies, University of Scranton
PRESENTERS: Mary Wootton, Gettysburg College
Jennifer Rosner, The Library Company of Philadelphia

In 1854, after the death of bookbinder Joseph T. Altemus, an inventory was taken of his Philadelphia bindery that revealed a remarkable amount of information about how a mid-nineteenth century bindery operated. Books have long been revered as repositories of historical memory, but more recently, we have begun to view books in our collections as artifacts, one could say “sites of memory.” They have journeyed from the printer’s shops to the bench of the bookbinder, to our shelves. They provide information about the available materials, technology and esthetic values of the time and place they came from. Owners and booksellers have also left their marks. This presentation will outline efforts to fully describe books and their copy-specific features.

S19. GETTYSBURG AS A SITE OF MEMORY

CHAIR/PRESENTER:
Carolyn Sautter, Gettysburg College

PRESENTERS: Andrew Dalton, Adams County Historical Society
Christopher Gwinn, Gettysburg National Military Park
Alex Japha, Lehigh University

Gettysburg was thrust onto the national scene in July 1863. It has remained there ever since, first in the memories of the soldiers of the battle and the citizens of the town and now in the educational psyche of rangers, archivists, educators, and visitors. Speakers in this session will discuss archival collections at Lehigh University, Gettysburg College, the Adams County Historical Society, and the Gettysburg National Military Park that highlight the development of Gettysburg as a site of memory. We will touch on the formation and dedication of the Gettysburg National Cemetery, initial efforts to bring veterans of the battle back to Gettysburg, civilian accounts of the battle and its aftermath, and the placement of monuments on the battlefield. Please join us as we explore Gettysburg as a gathering spot for those who remember and those who commemorate.

S20. RECORDED SOUND RIGHTS ACQUISITION: THE NEVER-ENDING STORY

CHAIR: Elizabeth Surles, Institute of Jazz Studies, Rutgers University-Newark

Harrison Behl, Library of Congress
Gabryel Smith, New York Philharmonic

Recorded sound and moving image materials are a tremendous resource for seeing history in action. While they offer opportunities for organizations and users to tell compelling stories, the use of these materials also presents complex challenges in obtaining rights clearances. This session will present the issues surrounding rights and permissions to use recorded sound and moving image materials from the perspective of a researcher, a repository, and a rights-holding organization.

S21. MID-CAREER DISCUSSION

MODERATORS: Karolina Lewandowska, Commander, Navy Installations Command
Jason G. Speck, Hillwood Estate, Museum and Gardens

Are you worried about future challenges regarding experience and skills gaps? Feeling “stuck,” or hesitant to dive in and try the “new” things? Frustrated by expectations that you should be advancing and moving up in your career? You are not alone. The MARAC Mid-Career elist would like to welcome Mid-Career archivists to join us for a lively and informal discussion about these and other relevant mid-career topics. We welcome participation from MARAC members at any stage of their career; we have a lot to teach each other.

S22. DIGITAL PRESERVATION PLANNING: CHOOSING SYSTEMS

CHAIR: Rachel Appel, University of Pennsylvania

PRESENTERS: Allison Olsen, University of Pennsylvania
Sarah Oswald, University of Pennsylvania
Megan Rentschler, Pennsylvania State Archives
Sam Sfirri, University of Pennsylvania
Suzanne Stasiulis, Pennsylvania State Archives
Marie Valigorsky, Pennsylvania State Archives

Archivists from the Pennsylvania State Archives will share how they are managing and prioritizing digital preservation, highlighting the challenges faced in current projects. Although they do not have a preservation system currently in place, they are working towards the procurement of one. Similarly, archivists and librarians at the University of Pennsylvania worked collaboratively on common solutions for digital collections preservation among many silos. They will focus on a pilot project evaluating Preservica and hosted Archivematica, how these systems can be used in receiving, processing, storing born-digital records, and the next steps for a project done completely virtually. Presentations will be followed by a discussion with the panel and audience on digital preservation planning best practices.
